

NO SCORE AT FOOTBALL

Reno Wheelmen Successful in Standing Off Their Well Trained Adversaries From Carson Indian Training School

(By Cash Smith.)

Thursday afternoon when King Ryan blew the whistle announcing the end of the Wheelmen-Indian game, the score stood 0 to 0. Although both teams showed to a considerable extent lack of training and sureness in handling the ball, the contest was a fair exhibition. The supporters of the great bicycle riders began to appear on the field at 1 p. m. and by 2:30 the bleachers were fairly filled. A few minutes later the players were informed that the time for battle had arrived. The Wheelmen won the toss and chose the north goal, with the Indians kicking off.

The ball was kicked out of bounds and was returned to the center and kicked off again. The Wheelmen ran in ten yards. Full Back Mefley tore through the Indian line for four yards and O. Peckham repeated the performance. G. Kornmeyer tore through the center for 10 yards.

The Indians seemed unable to resist the line hammering of the Wheelmen. They rapidly crossed the center of the field, and approached the coveted goal. Here the Indians braced and took the ball away on downs.

The Indian's offence was good, and for a time it seemed they would score. They skirted the Wheelmen ends for many valuable gains, although they were never sure they would get around Kirby and Julian, for these two certainly held end positions in fine style. They found the Wheelmen's line a hard proposition. During the remainder of the first half both teams found it difficult to make their downs, and a kicking game resulted. The Indians clearly excelled in this particular, many of their punts netting 50 yards. The half ended with the ball near the center of the field.

The Indians opened up the second half by swift end runs. They realized that the Wheelmen were somewhat winded, and took advantage of it. Their right half was a sure ground gainer. Once he went around the Wheelmen right end for a 35 yard run, and would have made a touchdown had not the loving arms of D. Acree embraced him. It was a beautiful tackle. The Indian was tearing down the field at break neck speed; not a man was there to interfere with him except Acree, who was playing defensive full. His tackle was sure and saved the Wheelmen from being scored against.

The Indians had an inexhaustible supply of fake plays, but the Wheelmen were on the alert, and always succeeded in stopping them. At no time during the rest of the game was it possible for either team to make a touchdown. Once the Indian full back attempted a drop kick but failed. The half ended with the ball in possession of the Indians on the Wheelmen's 25-yard line.

Everything went off nicely, there being no unnecessary roughness or slugging.

The whole Wheelmen team played well, considering their limited time for getting into shape. Wheelmen forwards, Hart, G. Smith, O'Brien and George, played good ball. Quarterback Kornmeyer and Seitz did good work.

ON OREGON FIELDS

Nevada Loses Two Football Games Away From Home

Nevada was not very successful Thanksgiving Day in its games away from home. The first eleven met defeat at Corvallis, Oregon, and the second team met defeat at Chico.

D. H. Updike, The Journal's representative at Chico, wired this paper immediately after each half. While the Nevada students played good football, their opponents were also cognizant of the rules of the game and had the athletic ability, the head work and the practice to enable them to shut out the university boys. The score was six to nothing in favor of the Normal school. McCloud suffered a broken shoulder in the game, which was played with vim and vigor from start to finish.

The report of the Corvallis game, as wired The Journal by Manager Nathan, is a sad story. The Oregon Agricultural College scored fifteen points, while Nevada never made a point.

He says that Nevada was compelled to use all its substitutes. He wired further that the treatment of the boys was all that could be desired.

The team will be home tomorrow. The players are reported to be all out of condition.

COUNCIL MEETING

City Fathers Conclude Their Business and Adjourn

A meeting of the city council was held for a few minutes last evening. Very little business was transacted.

An ordinance was read. It provides for the granting of building permits. A saloon license was issued.

The J. R. Bradley company was notified to either remove a wooden building at the rear of its store or change the structure to brick, iron or stone, it being within the fire limits.

Council then adjourned to its next regular meeting.

Thanksgiving Services

Trinity church held Thanksgiving services Thursday morning, beginning at 10 o'clock. At 10:30 a union Thanksgiving service was held by the Methodists, Presbyterians, Congregationalists and Baptists in the Presbyterian church. Rev. Dr. Welch, assisted by the other pastors, officiated.

Native Daughters

Two Thanksgiving presents arrived on Mill street. Both of them were pretty little baby daughters and the happy parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alex Walsh and Mr. and Mrs. J. Mansen.

WOULDN'T IT HAVE BEEN GREAT?

Yes, it would have been "Great" if Uncle Sam had on Thanksgiving Day carved up the trusts and presented the choice parts to the people to dispose of as they saw fit. But his deputy carver, Mr. Knox, is not an expert at the business and the probability is that the trust turkey will not encounter the knife until after the fourth of March, A. D., 1905.

TWO BILLETTS FOR BULLETS

Special to The Journal] OAKLAND, Nov. 28. — Policeman James H. Smith killed a burglar tonight, and a pal of the thief killed the officer. Smith saw two men, porch climbers, at work at 6:40 tonight on 14th street and attempted to arrest them and both drew pistols. One fired at once, fatally wounding Smith. The officer shot the other, killing him instantly. Then as the brave policeman fell dying, the murderous thief fired twice more into his body and ran away, making his escape.

Outlook Not Encouraged

Special to The Journal] TOKIO, Japan, Nov. 28. — Unless Russia quickly responds to the last Japanese note, there is grave danger of the military and naval elements in the country forcing the hands of the Japanese government and bringing on war. The trouble over the fixing of the status of Korea is causing the delay.

Sudden Death

Bert Ross was electrocuted in San Francisco Thanksgiving day by coming in contact with a live wire. He formerly resided in Long Valley and has many friends in this city.

TROUBLE IN THE ORIENT

Special to The Journal] WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. — In a hearing before the Senate Military Committee, which is considering the promotion of General Wood, Major James Runcie of Havana, told how the General had a magazine article written praising his work in Havana. The purpose was to secure the promotion of governor to the office of General of Cuba.

Off For the Fray

Yesterday afternoon the Reno high school football team left for Gardnerville to contest this afternoon. The players expect to return Sunday evening. They were accompanied by Coach Eugene Kirby, of the famous Wheelmen team.

Lull After Storm

Reno was mighty quiet last night. Everybody was resting up after the Thanksgiving day celebration. Physicians and druggists were kept busy ministering to the needs of dyspeptics.

One of the Latest Eastern Fads

Society never tires of fads. It has now become one of the regular features of a bachelor's farewell dinner to send the central floral piece to the bride-elect after the first course. No matter at what distance she may be the piece is sent and the greater the distance the greater the galantry. Reggie Vanderbilt was one of the first to establish the custom, and his beautiful mound of roses decorating the table at Sandy Point, R. I., was sent to Miss Oathleen Neilson, then in New York. Every fashionable bridegroom has done the same since then and it is an interesting moment when the dinner is suspended and the hosts directs an envelope to his beloved with his card. A bit of sentiment is good even for the Four Hundred.

Discoverer of Tonopah Talks About the Camp

Jim Butler, the man who discovered Tonopah, with its hundred of million dollars worth of wealth, is in town on his way from San Francisco to Carson to attend a mining suit.

Mr. Butler has been spending the past few months in San Francisco, a place he appears to like rather well, although the southern desert country is dearest to his heart.

Mr. Butler said last evening to a Journal reporter:

"I don't believe you people know half of the wealth of Tonopah. The estimate of Knapp that there was $100,000,000 blocked out looks to me like a very conservative estimate. Remember that this ore is all in the claims owned by the Tonopah mining company. It doesn't take into consideration the great values in the outside properties.

"I have disposed of practically all my holdings in the Tonopah company, although I still have about 700,000 shares in other properties there.

"Tonopah will yet become the biggest camp the world has known in the past couple of decades. And it's Jim Butler that says so."

GUN CLUB FORMED

Huntmen Will Have a Happy Home At Washoe Lake

Judge Clark, Senator Summerfield, R. B. Hawcroft, Sam Armanco and a number of other marksmen have formed a club, not yet named, and will have a hunting preserves at Washoe lake. They will build a clubhouse and install a first-class chef, so that members may hie them away to the duck country and enjoy the good things of this world while they are making names for themselves as mighty nimrods.

A New Union

Seven of the sober and industrious plasterers of Reno met last evening and organized a union. After the organization was completed a banquet was enjoyed at the residence of A. W. Holmes.

Preliminary Hearing

John Pickett, charged with selling whiskey to an Indian, is before the awful presence of Justice Nash receiving his preliminary examination.

Another Masque Ball

Last evening a masquerade ball was held by the Sierra Club at Huffaker's. A number of Renoites attended the function.

THE ANNUAL MASK BALL

Monumental Hose Company No. 6 Entertains the People of Reno With Its Eighth Annual Thanksgiving Party

The Firemen's masquerade ball Thursday evening was the biggest and best that Monumental Hose company, No. 6, has ever given. It was her eighth annual ball and among the previous seven were some parties that will always be remembered. In fact the dance given by the fire ladders in the Flanagan warehouse attracted many more spectators than Thursday evening.

The party took place in Wheelmen hall and that spacious pavilion was put in readiness for the event. There were a number of additional seats for spectators and the floor was waxed until it was like a mirror.

Prof. Hastings welded the baton over the Wheelmen club band and that excellent organization produced the best of music for the dancers.

The maskers numbered a couple of hundred and the floor was devoted to them alone until 11 o'clock, when the dancers removed their masks after the prizes were awarded. Spectators thronged the gallery and to them the scene was one long to be remembered. No unfortunate circumstance marred the pleasure of the evening and great care was exercised that no objectionable characters were admitted. Each person in costume was unmasked before a committee before entering the ball room.

The prizes were awarded as follows: Best dressed lady—Miss Nellie Epstein.

Second prize—Mrs. Edward Vance. Best dressed gentleman—Dick Hoffmann.

Second prize—Frank Rains. Best sustained characters—Miss Alma Pavola and James Merklinger.

Best group of eight—The football team.

Spectator's prize—Gerald F. Bacon. After the unmasking the floor was thronged by those in costume and spectators and several hours' dancing was enjoyed.

Fully Recovered From Operation

Henry P. Sanders, the Colorado mining man, who was operated upon for appendicitis by Drs. Schmidt and Murray about a month ago, has fully recovered and departed for his home in Colorado, accompanied by his wife. Mr. Sanders is a well known mining man and owns considerable mining property in Nevada.

GONE TO HER REWARD

DEATH has stricken with a heavy hand two of our associates in The Journal office. The blow has caused them and their only sister to mourn the passing away of one of the most kind, indulgent and affectionate mothers that ever presided over a Christian household. Mrs. Mary O. Blingham was of that temperament which limited her friends only to the number of her acquaintances, for her sunny disposition, gentle manners and kindly heart inspired the love and friendship of all whose good fortune brought them within the circle in which she moved. She was a firm believer in the divinity of the Master whose teachings she accepted and followed as the rule of her daily life. Her faith in His promises banished all fears of the hereafter and resigned her to await with hope and cheerfulness the last summons, in full confidence of a glorious resurrection and an eternal home, a house not made with hands, a mansion in the skies. That her hope will be realized who that knew her can for a moment doubt. Certainly not the dear ones whom she left behind and who were so near her and who knew her so well. May that knowledge comfort them in their affliction by inspiring them with the consciousness that what is their loss is her gain and that the loved one is in the hands of Him whose laws she so earnestly strove to obey and who will not withhold from her the reward she so faithfully earned and so abundantly merited.

PLATFORMS

PLATFORMS are considered, and correctly, too, an indispensable requisite for a political campaign in which some stated issues must appear upon which the party has definite ideas and policy and to whose support the voters must rally. But a miscalculation of the trend of public opinion, and of the number of voters who do their own thinking has created many a surprise when the votes were counted.

Politicians mixing with and meeting only kindred spirits are liable to imbibe one-sided ideas and reach a stage of mental delusion where they think their peculiar notions represent broad principles when in fact they represent only such ideas as seem best calculated to personally benefit the politician and secure him in office.

The best forecast that politicians can now make is little better than a guess, often a very wild one. The corruptible doubtful voter has multiplied in many localities during the last twenty-five years and within the last dozen years another uncertain element has become an important factor in all elections, and that is the quiet independent voter who does his own thinking, reads all sides, but does not imbibe his principles from the party press nor platform. As a rule he is not a candidate for office, is not obliged to announce his intentions, and consequently his numbers are unknown until the final count of votes.

This class of voters recognized the fact that the issues stated in the platforms are not always the true issues of the campaign, and, as their numbers increase, the attempt to deceive them by glittering generalities are more and more useless.

"Pointing with pride" to a record blotched with "graft" and freckled with postal frauds and land frauds will not satisfy men who care for the good of their country, neither will it avail much for office holders to inflict upon social or political gatherings lengthened arguments to prove that trusts cannot exist under the rule of their party. Existing facts are all that have weight and upon existing facts and conditions platforms should be formulated.

WERE OMITTED

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, in his Thanksgiving proclamation, states many things that the American people should be thankful for, but he made some important omissions. Among them were

That the postal scandals have in a measure been exposed.

That New York went Democratic

That Rockefeller is still making a few millions a month.

That the stockholders in the United Steel Trust can say to future generations "We have been responsible for a few libraries, even if the stock did go down to zero."

That Rhode Island is not entirely in the hands of the Republican machine.

That there are a few things that the trusts have not yet cornered.

That Nevada will next year elect a Democratic resident of the State to the United States Senate to take the place of Wm. Stewart, whose term will expire on the 4th of March, A. D. 1905.

on what they got, and Canada, instead of being disgruntled, ought to be as happy as a clam at high tide because she got anything belonging to us. In 1844 the Democrats, with Polk as their candidate, won on the cry of 'Fifty-four forty or fight.' Tom Benton, one of the greatest Democrats and statesmen that ever lived, always contended that we had an indefensible claim upon fifty-four forty, and he went to his grave disappointed that we did not make good that claim. If we had done so there never would have been any arbitration as to the Alaska line and we would have had three or four more great states in the northwest. "It is written by the finger of fate on the scroll of destiny" that sooner or later we will own every square foot of the British possessions on the North American continent. So Canada need not fear. She is our meat.

STATE THE CAUSE

WHILE our evening contemporary is culling extracts from the Nevada Democratic platform of 1898 why not include what is said in reference to Wm. M. Stewart, who through his lieutenant, the late C. C. Wallace, prevented the fusion which the Democrats proposed to the Silver party State convention. Mr. Ryan was not chairman of the Democratic convention, as our contemporary states, but was on the committee on platform, of which this writer was chairman. The severe language which the evening paper quotes was attributable solely to the action of the Silver party convention in the endorsement of Stewart, and which nearly if not every one of the members now most sincerely regrets, and vindicates the Democrats in their platform utterances. One good our senior Senator has accomplished. He has united the anti-Republican element of the State in bonds that will not be severed during the political life of that personage, and all of the efforts of his purchased organs to create dissension in the Fusion ranks will prove most dismal failures.

THE Utah State Journal gives the whole Panama matter in a nutshell in the closing paragraph of a most able and convincing article upon the subject. It concludes as follows: "We took Panama simply because we wanted Panama, not because it was ours, not because we had any right to it, and we took it in the very day when we were dealing with Colombia as a friendly power."

A Correspondent of The Journal Relates Some Interesting Facts Regarding Nevada

Mr Editor Many Chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution begin their work by studying up the early history of their own localities, and publishing the result of their researches. The consequence is that the general public becomes interested, so that when these Chapters reach the point of being able to restore records, publish volumes, or erect memorials, they find a substantial backing among their neighbors and friends.

The historian is an important official in a Chapter. It is her duty to make researches and prepare such historic papers as the needs of the Chapter may require. In some Chapters, the reading of an historic paper forms part of the regular literary and patriotic program of every meeting. In others, such a paper is only called for occasionally, according to circumstances.

Annexed is a specimen paper. The facts and dates given are correct. They may be further elaborated by the future historian of the projected Chapter in Reno.

Early History of Nevada

In 1497-8, John Cabot and his son, Sebastian, explored the Atlantic coast from Florida to Labrador. On the strength of this exploration, the English government claimed all of North America a claim which was never successfully disputed until the American Revolution of 1775-1783.

We have all learned this much in our school books. But we do not always pause sufficiently long to realize that the claim to the North American Continent extended not only from south to north, but also from east to west. Yet such is the case. The English claimed as far westward as the continent extended, although they had, as yet, no idea where its western boundary was. To them, the Atlantic coast was but one vast front door.

We all know that Sir Francis Drake was the first Englishman to circumnavigate the globe, (1577-79). But many of us are not so familiar with the details of his voyage. He left Plymouth England in 1577, sailed down the Atlantic, around Cape Horn and up the Pacific Coast reaching a point as far north as what is now a part of Oregon. He landed at the mouth of the Chehalis river, under the partial protection of Cape Ferrel. Turning southward, he landed at Drake's Bay near Point Reyes, June 17, 1579, in what is now California. Here he remained from June 17 to July 23, 1579, during which time his men lived in huts on shore, while repairing their vessels.

Now, these are important items for us to remember. Still more important it is for us to note that Sir Francis Drake took possession of the whole country in the name of Queen Elizabeth. To this country he gave the name of Nova Albion. The real "New England," then, is the Pacific coast.

On the old maps the name Nova Albion is marked as extending as far eastward as the Mississippi river. As late as 1772, the English had not relinquished their claim to the Pacific coast, on the strength of the discoveries of Sir Francis Drake.

While Drake and his followers were sojourning at Point Reyes, his chaplain conducted services from the English prayer book. This was the first instance in which prayers in the English language were heard on the North American Continent. The spot is marked by a massive stone cross erected by California Episcopalians in 1892.

After leaving Point Reyes Sir Francis Drake sailed westward across the Pacific to the Moluccas, thence to Java and the Indian ocean around the Cape of Good Hope, and up the Atlantic, home. He brought back to England with him the news of a South Sea.

The English possessions in North America now had a western boundary. Hence, the later thirteen English colonies all claimed that their territory extended to the South Sea.

In 1855, Sir Walter Raleigh landed on the coast of what is now North Carolina, and bestowed upon the whole country the name Virginia, in compliment to Queen Elizabeth, the maiden queen. Her successor, James the mainland of the United States is divided into two strips. The line between them runs along the northern boundary of Nevada.

Nevada, then, was once a part of King James' South Virginia, once a part of Queen Elizabeth's Virginia and Nova Albion.

The original of this map is the property of the United States government. Navigation and surveying are old arts. general shape of the North American Continent was early understood.

In 1681, King Charles II granted Pennsylvania to William Penn, who laid out three original counties, Philadelphia, Bucks and Chester. This last had no western boundary, but extended to the Pacific ocean, taking in the northern part of Nevada and California. Thus Nevada has been, successively part of, Virginia and Pennsylvania, and when the western boundary of Pennsylvania was determined, it left Nevada in Virginia again, along with the whole Illinois country and all the unknown regions west.

Inasmuch as the Nevada territory figures on the early maps of Virginia it has a true Colonial history. My farm is mine, whether I build upon it or not, so long as I have the deed.

The story would be very simple if there had been no conflicting claims.

Our early English ancestors did not know of any. But they were destined to hear later.

In 1524, John Verazzano, sent out by the French king, explored the North American Continent and named the whole country New France. But the successors found it impossible to get possession of New France, by way of the Atlantic coast. Hence, they pushed along the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes, then down into the Mississippi valley, cutting the Englishman's Virginia in two. In 1539, De Soto had discovered the Mississippi, near its mouth, and on the strength of this the Spanish were pushing upward.

In 1540, Coronado led an expedition from Old Mexico into what is now Colorado, claiming the whole country for Spain. In 1542, Cabrillo sailed along the coast of Upper California, landing at a point south of what is now San Francisco, and claiming all undiscovered territory eastward. It will thus be seen that Nevada has been a part of New Spain and New France, as well as a part of Nova Albion and Virginia.

The settlement of these conflicting claims affords material for countless essays. We need only remark, in passing, that after the French and Indian war, England by the Treaty of Paris in 1763, accepted the Mississippi river as the western boundary of her thirteen Atlantic colonies. But she still expected to get California, in two ways. First by gaining a foothold in Florida and pushing westward. Second, by sending a warlike expedition to the Pacific coast.

At the time of the Declaration of Independence, 1776, Nevada was a part of California. Numerous settlements had been made along the coast, the first of which was San Diego, in 1769. This was settled by Father Junipero Serra, sent out from Mexico by Don Jose de Galvez, Visitor General of the Indies, whose power was second only to that of the Spanish Prime Minister, Grimaldi.

During the Revolutionary period both France and Spain were allies of the Americans. In 1778-80, Don Bernardo de Galvez then governor of Louisiana and afterwards Viceroy of Mexico, drove the British out of Florida, and thus blocked their little game of pushing westward into California. Bernardo was a nephew of Jose.

In 1778, the English sent two expeditions against California, one under Admiral Hughes, the other under Captain James Cook. But, in some way, they heard of the warlike preparations made to receive them, and did not attempt to land.

The vigorous governor was Felipe de Neve, who held office from 1774 until 1782.

He was succeeded by Pedro Fages, who was in office from 1782 to 1790. Fages had previously distinguished himself by an exploration of the in-

of Utah and Nevada.

So much for Nevada's Revolutionary history. She has a genuine list of Revolutionary heroes, as follows:

King Carlos III of Spain, an ally of the United States, joined in the war against England and aided the struggling colonies with ships, men and money. On the strength of his aid, his great-granddaughter, Princess Eulalia, is a member of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Grimaldi, the wise prime minister, friend of the United States.

Don Jose de Galvez, visitor-general and minister of the Indies, friend and ally of the United States, pronounced by Bancroft to have been in his day, the ablest man in all America.

Don Matthias de Galvez, his brother, Viceroy of Mexico, 1776-85 and friend of the United States.

Don Bernardo de Galvez, son of Matthias, friend and ally of the United States. In 1778-80 he was governor of Louisiana. Later viceroy of Mexico.

General de Croix, ally of the United States, commandante general of the Internal Provinces.

Felipe de Neve, governor of California, 1774-82, friend and ally of the United States. He made vigorous preparations to defend California from an expected invasion of the English.

Pedro Fages, governor of California, 1782-90, ally of the United States, explorer of the interior of California.

Juan Bautista de Anza, governor of New Mexico, during the Revolutionary period, as a military and civil officer under an allied nation, Spain, he was an ally of the United States, explorer of Utah and Nevada.

The Resources of the State are Coming to the Attention of the Investing Public Through Proper Advertising

The great need of Nevada today is people to develop its wonderful resources. It has the natural advantage to make it one of the great states in the Union and only the lack of man's efforts has left it behind its sister states in the race of progress.

At the present time there are unmistakable signs of a great awakening. The efforts of the federal government to reclaim the desert have attracted a great deal of attention and it is beginning to be realized more freely than ever before right here at home that there is a great future in store for us if we take advantage of our opportunities. California's wonderful development in the last few years has been due not solely to its natural advantages, but to the faith and push of its citizens, who have been willing to devote time and money to the great work of attracting immigration to its shores, and the return has been great beyond all expectations.

Nevada has begun upon the same lines and the work of the Chamber of Commerce under the able and energetic management of Major Ingalls is beginning to make itself felt, as is attested by the numerous inquiries which daily reach him from people both east and west who desire to locate in the state.

No opportunity should be lost to further the movement and in our humble opinion Orchard and Farm, which is doing so much to advertise California throughout the east, should receive the hearty co-operation and support of our citizens.

Mr. Stokes, the editor, who is here making arrangements for a regular Nevada section of the paper, said last evening:

"We have unlimited faith in Nevada and intend making our paper the messenger bearing the tidings of her great opportunities to the outside world. Publicity is what she needs—conservative, reliable advertising that shall attract good citizens, who will find conditions as represented and remain to take advantage of them. Deserts have been the sites of some of the greatest civilizations in history and with the advent of water there is no doubt in my mind that the history of the region around Salt Lake will be repeated in Nevada. Settlers will come in and purchase desert and in a year or two find themselves the possessors of garden lands unexcelled in fertility and productiveness anywhere in the world."

"What I want to do is to get at the best method of making our paper useful to this section, and with this idea in view I shall call upon some of your representative citizens to state their views on the needs of Nevada, and the best ways of meeting those needs. This I propose to publish in Orchard and Farm, as I believe these statements will form the best kind of advertisement of the state."

The Best Remedy for Croup

(From the Atkinson, Kan., Daily Globe)
This is the season when the women who know the best remedies for croup are in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are almost as sure to be lost, in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglars. There used to be an old-fashioned remedy for croup, known as hive syrup and tulu, but some modern mothers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better, and does not cost so much. It causes the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker, and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by S. J. Hodgkinson, druggist.

INCURABLE.

That is What the Books Say of Chronic Kidney Disease, But the New Fulton Compounds Have a Record of 87% of Recoveries Among Chronic Cases Incurable by All Other Medicines.

Druggists know that kidney disease that has hung on eight or ten months has become chronic and that it is then regarded by physicians as incurable and that up to the advent of the Fulton Compounds that nothing on their shelves would touch it. It is a proven fact that nearly nine-tenths of all cases are now curable, and druggists themselves are taking the new Compounds. One of the recoveries was Dr. Zeile himself, the pioneer druggist of 523 Pacific street, San Francisco, and he gave it to over a dozen others who recovered. Here is another interesting recovery. (We copy from the Sacramento News of November 16, 1902.)

"After a serious illness of over a year Judge J. R. Allen of this city had recovered and regards himself most fortunate in successfully battling with what is generally regarded as a fatal malady, Bright's Disease of the kidneys. In speaking of his case Judge Allen said: 'I believe that the treatment given me by my physician was in accordance with the best methods used in the regular practice of medicine, but it afforded me no relief. Hearing of the Fulton Compounds I went to San Francisco to investigate and was soon convinced I should undergo the treatment. It was three months before I noticed a change for the better. I used the medicine faithfully for nearly a year and can now find no evidence of the disease and am satisfied it is entirely eliminated. My appetite is good, I have gained seventeen pounds in weight and will be pleased to describe my experience to anyone who may call or write.'"

The editor of the News himself was the friend who told Judge Allen of the Fulton Compounds. They are the only things known that cure kidney diseases after as well as before they become chronic, which happens about the tenth month. Equally efficient in dropsy, gout, rheumatism from uric acid and bladder troubles, Fulton's Renal Compound for Bright's and Kidney Diseases, etc., $1; for Diabetes, $1.50. John J. HELLO WILL COMING Although H. H. B Has Made His Award Other Solutions of a Financial Enigma are Being Presented

Editor Journal The claim that the Bank of England fixes the value of gold at $20 67 per ounce is rather misleading. The act of Parliament so often referred to makes gold receivable at the bank at the rate of $18 9185 per ounce, 916 2-3 fine, which for gold 1000 fine would be at the rate of $20 638 The United States mint price for gold 1000 fine is $20 671, about 3 1-3 cents more per ounce than the rate fixed by Parliament for the Bank of England.

There has been only one year between 1870 and 1899 that the average yearly price of gold in London remained at the value fixed by Parliament, but the price has fluctuated all the way from $18 9185 to $18.9637 per ounce 916 2-3 fine This does not look like the act of Parliament fixed the price of gold very stationary for London alone, to say nothing for the rest of the planet. The above statistical information is taken from the annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899, page 327.

Great Britain as a financial power is becoming rather weak. British consuls which a few years ago were selling at a premium are now quoted at more than ten per cent below par The following statistical information, used by Ellis H. Roberts, treasurer of the United States, at the bankers' convention, held in San Francisco, last October, also shows the position that Great Britain occupies as a factor of fixing the value of gold

Stock of gold in various countries as shown by the latest available returns

United States	$1274,362,651
France	947,700,000
Germany	763,500,000
Russia	746,200,000
Great Britain	528,000,000

This superstitious reverence for the Bank of England and London quotations of the price of precious metals caused the treasury department, during Cleveland's administration, to default in buying the amount of silver bullion required under the provisions of the Sherman law of 1890 Carlisle was trying to follow the London quotations very closely, although there was plenty of silver offered he failed to buy the required amount The preceding administration believed the United States had as good a right to fix the market price for silver as any other power and had no difficulty in purchasing the full amount X

VISIT OF NOTED ARTIST W. A. Perrin, the Landscape Painter, Tarrying in Reno

Genuine art is not so plentiful in this world that it can be passed by like an insurance company's lithographed almanac. The grit that enables one to search through mountain fastnesses and over broad plains in the search after inspiration and the artistic talent that enables him to apply his colors so that fine gold is gilded and the lily painted, are two attributes that fall so infrequently to the heritage of any one man that the possessor should receive the honor and emolument due him

There is at present in this city a master artist whose brush savors at once of Kenyon Cox and Rembrandt, whose high colors and landscapes place him at once in the class of the two artists mentioned

His name is W. A. Perrin and he is at present a guest at the Riverside.

Mr. Perrin is here that he may capture the colors than which none is more evasive.

Act of Vandalism

The Truckee River General Electric company has been made defendant in a case that will possibly entail some damages. Without permit or right of way it is said to have constructed a high voltage line through the school yard in Brown's district, south of town, and chopped down several trees that were nurtured there for the past two decades. The trustees have had a warrant issued for the arrest of the construction foreman.

CONDUCTED AFFAIR

The Teachers' Institute Just Closed Was the Best Ever Held in the State of Nevada by Long Odds

The teachers' institute is a procession marching away from us down the road to By-and-By. We are taking a birdseye view of it as it winds its way along.

The brightest figure of that receding line is Mr. Linscott, of course, with his flashing black eye, his forceful manner and his wholesome "Be careful."

May the vision of him in all his sweet reasonableness be long in fading from view—the longer the better.

The university company makes a goodly bunch over there in the line of slowly departing figures. Miss Weir and Prof. Wilson walk together—a part of their conversation being wafted back to us:

"Teach history because it shows what individuals and nations have accomplished. Men learn by comparison."

"But the practical sciences must lead men how to do things—"

Surely that was Professor Cushman's alto breaking in with:

"Men must think first, and do afterwards. They must think what to do and how to do it. Literature disciplines thought."

But who is that hurrying along there at the side, trying to catch up?

It must be—yes, it is Prof. Adams, the modest man, and we remember that he was the one always ready and willing to give up his time to others instead of taking himself.

He made himself last. Maybe that is the reason he is up so near the front in our regard.

They blur as they march away, and it is hard to tell who they are, or to hear what they say.

But, stay! We do catch an echo. The voice seems to have Dr. Stubbs' ring to it.

"Teach the boys and girls to be patriots. It is better to be a good citizen than a good scholar, if you can't be both."

A cloud of dust hides the caravan from sight. The wind blows chill. We go in and shut the door. We draw our chins up to the bright fire. It is time for kimonas and a comfortable chat.

"Oh dear, and oh, dear!" sighed Miss De Spair, "I always come out of an institute feeling like thirty cents, (her fatigue vocabulary.)"

"I hear so much about essentials. Each thing is more essential than the last, and there is no end to them."

"The good things I thought I was doing are belittled out of sight, or they seem of so little account that I am half ashamed that I ever thought them good."

"Oh, dear! I feel that I shall never scold a child again for saying 'I don't know nothin' no more.'"

"Like the good Episcopalian, I've done those things I ought not to have done, and I've left undone those things I ought to have done."

"I declare, it's maddening to remember it all or 'Put more time on this'—'Emphasize that'—'Daily drills on the other'—'Don't leave out.' I wonder if institute people don't really know how many hours there are in a school day. (I noticed that nearly everybody at the institute was late to everything.)"

"It's enough to land a teacher down in Patterson's hotel, isn't it?"

"Shall we tear our hair out by the roots, or shall we jump into the river?"

"I'm plumb discouraged."

"There, there, cut it out, goose," calmly advised Miss Phil Osophy.

"Don't you know that you and I and all the rest of us will just go back to our school rooms, Monday morning and do the very best we can with the material on hand to provide the menu demanded by our course of study?"

"Me—I'm going to paper up all my oyster cans and make Thanksgiving last as long as possible."

"Here, eat this piece of mince pie and dream of your grandmother—that's better than wowing."
